

Call my Bluff examples

troofer

1. (trooFAY) A very sugary boiled sweet, sometimes coated in chocolate, originating in Belgium.
2. (TROOFer) Slang term for members of the cavalry or mounted police – from the combination of ‘troop’ and ‘hoof’.
3. (TROOFer) A person who does not believe the generally accepted explanation of a particular event and believes that they know the true facts about what happened.

True

cenote

1. (siNOtay) A deep hole under the ground that contains water, especially in southern Mexico and Central America. True
2. (SEEnote) Safety system for professional drivers, where the indicator bleep changes pitch every few seconds, so that the driver does not forget it is engaged.
3. (SENote) a fixed amount of money that you have to pay as soon as you begin a taxi journey, make a toll call etc.

graphene

1. (GRAfene) A liquid polymer mixed with chips of rubber to make a soft surface used in children’s play areas.
2. (GRARfene) [Economics] A statistical quirk that appears in error in a graph but not on other methods of presenting the same set of data.
3. (GRAfene) [Chemistry] A material that consists of a layer of carbon atoms that is only one atom thick. True